RevCycle Partners Now Supports Compulink EHR and Practice Management Software

The revenue cycle management company extends its insurance billing support to optometry practices using Compulink.

CHICAGO, IL -- RevCycle Partners, a revenue cycle management company serving eye care practices, now supports Compulink, an EHR and Practice Management software provider.

"It was important for us to add support for the Compulink platform for our billing services," says CEO Paul Hartge. We see Compulink in many large practices through the U.S., and we are pleased to be able to offer our insurance billing services to that group of practices."

RevCycle Partners, under the leadership of Hartge and Christine Schneider, Vice President of Operations, formally separated from RevolutionEHR/Rev360 in May 2018 and became an independent company with separate ownership. In 2013, RevolutionEHR, the leading cloud-based software for optometrists, launched "RevCycle" as an outsourced billing service for its software customers. The meteoric rise of RevCycle's services prompted the RevolutionEHR/Rev360 senior team to create a new company.

In forming a new company, Hartge and Schneider sought to create continuity in service of RevolutionEHR customers while expanding their vision to become a full-service, revenue cycle management business that serves multiple platforms. Compulink is the fourth software platform to be added since the spin-off.

RevCycle Partners' mission is to fight for what's due for both doctors and patients, creating greater efficiency and contributing to a positive, ongoing doctor-patient relationship.
